Nancy L. Caroline, MD

Think back to the time when paramedics did not exist; when "drivers" simply brought patients to the hospital; when the EMS industry was in its infancy. This was the time before Dr. Nancy Caroline.

Dr. Caroline's work transformed EMS and the entire paramedic field. She created the first national standard curriculum for paramedic training in the United States. She also wrote the first paramedic textbook: Emergency Care in the Streets. This is the sixth edition of that groundbreaking text.

The impact that Dr. Caroline had on EMS and healthcare spanned the United States to countries far and wide. From establishing EMS systems, to training paramedics, to providing better nourishment and healthcare for orphans, Dr. Caroline's work had a profound impact on humanity. Throughout her life, Dr. Caroline brought a sense of excitement, joy, and humor to her work.

The AAOS is proud to continue Dr. Caroline's legacy. Her sense of excitement and humor live on in the Sixth Edition, which is dedicated to her.

"Arrhythmia Recognition uses graphics to simplify and explain some of the more challenging topics. I know this will be a great benefit to students who are having a hard time 'seeing' what's happening. The Third Edition is appropriate for EMS courses covering management and administration.

Principles of EMS Systems, Third Edition provides EMS personnel with an overview of the organization and operation of an EMS system, both on a daily basis and in response to large-scale events. This book explores the role the medical director plays in EMS and discusses the importance of medical oversight and accountability. By focusing on the collaborative interaction of EMS, police, and fire professionals, along with emergency physicians, emergency departments, and hospitals, this resource provides a framework for how these different groups must work together to ensure the emergency medicine/health care safety net does not fail when it is needed the most.

Experience the difference of training programs from the Emergency Care and Safety Institute (ECSI)! ECSI is the only organization endorsed by two nationally recognized medical associations—the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons and the American College of Emergency Physicians. For more information, visit www.ESCInstitute.org.

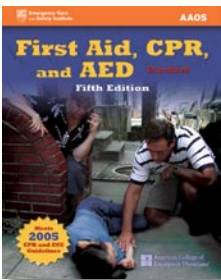

These resources have been meticulously revised to incorporate the 2005 consensus guidelines on cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and emergency cardiac care (ECC). These texts include:

Francis L. Brannigan

1919 - 2006

Phoenix Chief Alan Brunacini said Brannigan was one of those professors who made an impression. "He was the Christopher Columbus of the relationship between building construction and the fire service...His impact will last forever," he said. "Frank was bombastic, articulate, and passionate about his subject."

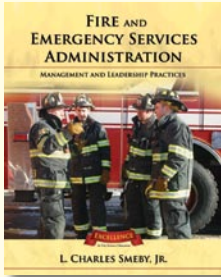

"Frank Brannigan was not a fire chief or an engineer; but he became one of the most important influences in the fire service in the last quarter of the 20th century," said Vincent Dunn, Deputy Chief, FDNY (Ret.). "He accomplished this through the strength of his personality and his character. He was dedicated to the mission of firefighting and was a true professional."

"Frank was one of the first people in the fire service that saw the forest. He was not blinded by the little trees," Dunn continued. "When you think of Frank you must use words like: renowned, celebrated, acclaimed, influential, and most of all a leader. He showed all of us fire chiefs how to do it."

Brunacini said fire fighters around the world are safer because of Brannigan. "We were fortunate to have him."

This retrospective captures the essence of an important chapter in the history of EMS and entertainment: Emergency! When the world premiere of Emergency! was first broadcast in 1972, there were only 12 paramedic units in all of North America. Ten years later, more than half of all Americans were within ten minutes of a paramedic rescue or ambulance unit. Emergency! influenced this growth.

Emergency! followed the daily lives of a pair of Los Angeles County Fire Department fire fighters and paramedics, along with their colleagues at Station 51 and the emergency department staff of Rampert General Hospital. This series introduced audiences from all over the world to the concept of emergency medical services.
